First sighting (in the UK). Two Small Tortoiseshells flew into the garden this afternoon. Temperature was about 18°C.

With the warmer weather today, I saw three butterflies in the garden – a Yellow Brimstone, a Peacock, and a Tortoiseshell. Our garden doesn't seem to attract many butterflies which is probably due to the many fields and hedgerows that surround us.

On the local golf course today. Conditions windy and not very sunny, but I did see Orange-tips and a Green-veined White.
